

List of Historic Buildings in Surrey Heath

January 2010

*Brook Place, Bagshot, Grade II**

'leading for tomorrow'

Introduction

The Borough of Surrey Heath has a small but interesting selection of historic buildings which the Council seeks to protect and preserve for the enjoyment of future generations. These have been afforded protection through their inclusion on the statutory or local lists. This booklet provides an overview of what listing means and identifies which buildings in Surrey Heath are currently included on these lists.

THE STATUTORY LIST

Why are buildings listed?

Historic buildings are part of our communal heritage, both locally and nationally. They provide a unique record of the craftsmanship of earlier generations.

These special buildings are a dwindling resource that cannot be replaced and must therefore be protected for the benefit of future generations. The stock of historic buildings is depleted not just through demolition, but also through neglect and insensitive or excessive alterations. Listing introduces a measure of control by placing special responsibilities on owners and the Local Planning Authority to ensure that buildings are properly maintained and are not altered or demolished without careful consideration through the listed building consent procedure.

Garrison Church of St. Barbara, Deepcut, Grade II

Which buildings are listed and what do the grades mean?

Buildings are selected for inclusion on the list drawn up by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (formerly the Department of National Heritage) following the recommendations of English Heritage. They are chosen for a number of reasons, including their architectural style, historical associations, unusual construction methods or their value as part of an attractive group. As a rough rule of thumb, the older the building and the less it has been altered, the more likely it is to be listed. They can be large or small, grand or humble and can also include structures such as milestones, monuments, telephone boxes and village pumps.

Milestone, London Road, Camberley, Local List

Listed buildings are given grades according to their relative importance. Grade I buildings are considered to be of 'exceptional interest' and represent only about 2% of all listed buildings. Grade II* buildings are of 'particular importance' and may contain outstanding internal features. In England, only about 4% of all listed buildings fall into this category. The great majority (representing over 90% of all listings) are Grade II which are defined as those having 'special interest'. The same level of protection applies to a Grade II building as to one listed as Grade I.

The lists are not closed and more buildings will be added as further discoveries are made and perceptions about that which is architecturally or historically valuable change.

What does the listing include?

When a building is listed, the listing applies to the entire building, inside and out. This includes any modern day extensions physically attached to the building as well as internal features that contribute to the building's character. In addition, any free-standing building or structure within the curtilage since before 1st July 1948 is also considered to be part of the listed building. Such structures may include the boundary walls, outbuildings, garden ornaments, and the like.

What is listed building consent?

The listing of a building does not necessarily mean that it must be preserved as a museum piece without any form of alteration or extension to suit modern day requirements. However, it is essential that listed building consent has been obtained from the Borough Council before any work which affects the character of the building is carried out. No fees are required. Failure to obtain such consent prior to carrying out works is a criminal offence which carries penalties of a fine or imprisonment, or both. Application forms for listed building consent and further guidance are available from Surrey Heath Borough Council or the Council's website (details on the back page).

Frimley Park Mansion, Frimley, Grade II

Listed buildings in Surrey Heath

A national re-survey was completed in 1984 which has led to the statutory listing today of 178 buildings within Surrey Heath. The majority of these are listed as Grade II (97%); with five listed as Grade II* and only one Grade I listing (the Church of St Lawrence in Chobham).

LIST OF STRUCTURES OF LOCAL SIGNIFICANCE

The Borough also maintains a list of 'locally listed buildings' which have local architectural or historic significance. There are currently 198 locally listed buildings in Surrey Heath. They contribute greatly to the local character of the Borough and should be protected and retained whenever possible. 'Curtilage' buildings are not included in the listing. Works to locally listed buildings require only the normal planning permission. In considering such applications however, special regard will be given to retaining the character and appearance of the building.

Witwood, Park Street, Camberley, Grade II

The list on the following pages sets out the names, addresses and grades of statutorily listed and locally listed buildings in the Borough (in alphabetical street name order). This list has been compiled from the DOE/DCMS list of buildings of special architectural or historic interest (the statutory list) and the Surrey Heath Borough Council list of structures of local significance (the local list).

If in any doubt about whether a building is statutorily listed, please consult the DCMS list, which should always be taken as the definitive document. A copy of the list is available for inspection at the offices of Surrey Heath Borough Council or Surrey County Council.
